State fact sheets for grandparents and other relatives raising children

AARP, The Brookdale Foundation Group, Casey Family Programs, Child Welfare League of America, Children's Defense Fund, and Generations United have partnered to produce state and national GrandFacts fact sheets for grandparents and other relatives raising children. The state fact sheets include state-specific data and programs as well as information about foster care, public benefits, educational assistance and state laws. Visit www.grandfactsheets.org to find this and all GrandFacts state fact sheets.

West Virginia

The Children

- 40,912 children under age 18 live in homes where the householders are grandparents or other relatives (10.6% of the children in the state.) (U.S. 2010 Census)
 - Of these, 34,806 live with grandparents who are the householders (9% of the children in the state) and 6,106 live with other relatives who are the householders (1.6% of the children in the state). (U.S. 2010 Census)
- 19,105 children live in homes with grandparent householders where grandparents are responsible for them*
 - Of these children, 8,421 have no parents present in the home.*

The Grandparents*

- 19,310 grandparents are the householders and are responsible for their grandchildren living with them. Of these:
 - 93% of the grandparents are White and not Hispanic, 4% are Black/African American, and 1% are Hispanic/Latino, and may be of any race.

Children in Foster Care

- Sometimes state child welfare agencies place children in foster care with grandparents or other relatives. This is often called “kinship care.”
- Federal law requires states to notify all known relatives within 30 days of children’s removal from their parents.

In 2009 in West Virginia:

- 4,237 children/youth spent some time in out-of-home care
- 549 of these children/youth were placed in certified relative/kinship care
- 3,688 of these children/youth were placed in non-certified relative/kinship care

Placement Policies

The West Virginia Department of Health and Human Resources is required to place a child with the child’s extended family whenever it is in the best interests of the child and the department approves the home of the extended family member. Kinship/relative foster parents have to meet the same licensing standards and receive the same foster care payment rate as non-kinship/relative foster parents.

Subsidized Guardianship

The West Virginia Department of Health and Human Resources, Bureau of Children and Families, provides an ongoing subsidy for eligible children in the West Virginia foster care system whose qualified adult caregivers become their legal guardians. To receive a subsidy on behalf of the child, the guardian must show that there is a strong emotional tie with the child and that the child is not likely to be adopted or otherwise placed without the subsidy. The State will determine the amount of the subsidy awarded as well as the frequency of payments. The subsidy can be in the form of funding for services or stipends.

Public Benefits

Federal and state public benefits programs can help with income, food, healthcare, home energy, telephone and other needs for those who are eligible. Eligibility requirements vary with each public benefit and sometimes are different from state to state. Some benefits are for the family and others are for children or older adults individually. Children are often eligible for public benefits even if their caregivers do not have legal guardianship or custody. Grandparents may become eligible for benefits programs when their household size increases.

Help with Public Benefits

Educational Enrollment

Relative caregivers can contact their local school district's administrative office or their local school to find out how to register the child and what paperwork is needed. Caregivers may need birth records, health records or previous school records. Some states have laws that allow relative caregivers to enroll children they are raising in school. These laws are often called "education consent" laws, but may be called something else in your state.

Early Intervention, Special Education and Related Services

What you need to know:

- The Federal Individuals with Disabilities Act (IDEA) - From birth to age 21, children who have learning disabilities, physical disabilities or other special needs may be able to get special early intervention, preschool and special education services in school through the federal IDEA. Services may include speech, physical, and occupational therapies.

- Child Find – A part of the IDEA that requires states to identify, locate and evaluate children in the areas of cognitive and physical functioning, hearing and vision, speech and language and social and emotional development as early as possible. Once the Child Find evaluation team, which includes a child's caregivers, has decided if a child is eligible for early intervention or preschool special education services, an Individual Family Service Plan (IFSP; birth to three years of age) or an Individual Education Plan (IEP; three to five years of age) is developed and services begin shortly at no cost.
